Nick Spitzer, the creator and producer of the radio program "American Routes," will be participating Tuesday (December 8) in a symposium at the Library of Congress.

Spitzer, who is also a Tulane professor of anthropology and American studies, and Maureen Loughran, "American Routes" other producer, will discuss their project to document working musicians in New Orleans. Joining them will be Derrick Tabb of the Rebirth Brass Band.

Later on Tuesday, Spitzer will be on a panel discussing the role that people in the arts and humanities play in training workers.
